

ADAM'S BREED

RADCLYFFE
HALL

A DIALOGUE

Between A C...

...woman writer...
this is her first book published in America. I recommend it because it is different, it is interesting, because it is written with skill. It is published by the covers of Margaret Kennedy her "Constant Nymph."

Why do you charge $2.50 for it? It is a long book, costs much to make and is worth the price.

What is it about?

It is concerned chiefly with a man called Gian-Luca — an Italian born in London, who became the master of a great restaurant in London, like Oscar of the Waldorf-Astoria.

A restaurant keeper, hmmm!

Yes, but this book has opened to me a side of life that was new to me before. The people I met served me at hotels and restaurants were to me merely automatons; now that I have had a glimpse of their inner lives, I shall never go into a place to dine without thinking of Gian-Luca, his strivings, his frustrated life, and his final astonishing triumph. It is the kind of book that grows in interest as you read.

37, HOLLAND STREET
KENSINGTON, W.8.

PARK 7314.

April 13th 1927.

Dear Miss Mabel.

Thank you so much for your letter. Naturally I am very delighted at having won the prize. I know that you have always been a wonderful friend & "Adams Breed", and I am grateful for all the kind words of praise that you have given it. I am returning the O! Graciously correspondence — my only comment is: Amazing!

ST. HOLLAND STREET

KENSINGTON W.8

ENGLAND

I think that feeling as he does towards us, it would have been better had he refused the prize.
It appears to me that he wants
it both ways!

I do hope that your daughter's book will be a great success, please convey to her my very heartfelt good wishes.

Yours v. sincerely

Radclyffe Hall.

70 — Agnes Herbert — from the author
Radcliffe Hall

ADAM'S BREED

Books by Radclyffe Hall

ADAM'S BREED
THE FORGE
A SATURDAY LIFE
THE UNLIT LAMP

ADAM'S BREED

BY RADCLYFFE HALL

GARDEN CITY
DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY
NEW YORK
1926

DEDICATED TO OUR THREE SELVES

COPYRIGHT, 1926, BY RADCLIFFE HALL.
ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES AT THE COUNTRY
LIFE PRESS, GARDEN CITY, N. Y.

WORLD'S WORK

The Magazine par excellence of Great Writers and Great Articles

THE WORLD'S WORK makes no claim to being the "best" or the "greatest" current events magazine in the universe. It is indisputably different. Its editorials are straight-hitting, its articles unbiased. Its illustrations do not parallel or duplicate those you see in the daily papers or in other magazines. Its system of interpreting the news is its own. The one man best fitted to write upon a particular subject—be he President, Premier or Pullman porter—is the man finally chosen to write upon that subject. Result: A striking and unique magazine, as fascinating as it is authoritative.

FIVE ISSUES ONLY $1

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. MAIL
Garden City, N. Y. TO-DAY!

Enclosed find $1 for which please send me the next five issues of The World's Work. (Regular price—$1.75)

Name

Address

ADAM'S BREED

RADCLYFFE
HALL

A DIALOGUE

Between A Curious Customer and The Accommodating Bookseller.

Do you recommend this book
"Adam's Breed" by Radclyffe
Hall?

I do.

Why? Who is Radclyffe Hall?

A woman writer of England and this is her first book published in America. I recommend it because it is different, it is interesting, and because it is written with rare skill. It is published by the discoverers of Margaret Kennedy and her "Constant Nymph."

Why do you charge $2.50 for it?

It is a long book, costs much to make and is worth the price.

What is it about?

It is concerned chiefly with a man called Gian-Luca—an Italian, born in London, who becomes the master of a great restaurant in London, like Oscar of the Waldorf-Astoria.

A restaurant keeper, hmmm!

Yes, but this book has opened to me a side of life that was closed to me before. The people who served me at hotels and restaurants were to me merely automatons, but now that I have had a glimpse of their inner lives, I shall never go into a place to dine without thinking of Gian-Luca, his strivings, his frustrated life, and his final astonishing triumph. It is the kind of book that grows in interest as you read.

Radclyffe Hall . . .
author of "Adam's Breed"